The troubles in the Christian Church is not the most potent offuse of the non-prosperity of the Kentucky University, upon which institution $800,000 have been spent. The fearful want of morality and chastity existing among a great number of persons in this city deters cautious parents from sending their sons here, with the knowledge that all kinds of persons usually fall into the nabits, imperceptibly, of those they mix with. The great cause of this condition of affairs is idleness and intemperance.

THE EXPOSITION

The attendance at the Exposition this forencon was not so large as heretofore, owing, in all probability, to the disagreeable weather. Grand preparations are being made for the flower display of tomorrow. The Commissioners have offered an additional premium of $50 for the best fifteen pieces of floral work— $30 for the dirst and $20 for the second. Quite a large number of entries have been made so far, showing that there will be a lively contest, especially be-tween the leading florists. Sunderbruch and Critchell are in the lead for the long race for the sweepstakes medal, having thus far distanced all competitors. The former is now one premium ahead of Critchell, and to-morrow will find both of them at the starting string, keen for the race. Critchell makes entries for the fifteen pieces of floral work, offering standing pieces in the shape of crosses, anchors, mottoes and the like instead of old-time mottoes and the like Instead of old-time flat pieces laid on pieces of moss or sand. For the best bridal bouquet he offers a magnificent piece of flat work, of the most delicate and beautiful flowers, said to be one of the finest yet exhibited. For the best vase of loose flowers the entry will be a vase from two and a half to three feet, by three or four feet high, filled with the rarest of flowers. This was piece will cost unwards of a hundred

The best new design, however, will excel anything before seen in Floral Hall. A description of this can not be given, as it is for originality more than anything else that the premiums are offered, and the peculiar structure of the piece is kept a profound secret.

Mr. Sunderbruch enters for the fifteen best pieces, numerous crosses, crowns, anchors, baskets and the like, all of which will be new in design from any heretofore displayed. For the best bridal bouquet, best loose vase of cut flowers, and best new design, over fifty feet of table will be covered by this one displays.

It lasted about twenty minutes, where others have occupied as many hours. It was very thorough; not a single dish was slighted, and the automatic cut-offs, that were gathered around that table worked with a rapidity that caused the bystanders to gasp with astonishment. Even the Mohawk Dutchman had to take a back seat when the "Hill" circular saw began to get in its work on one of the St. Charles beefsteaks. Every ounce of meat and every drop of coffse consumed was weighed and measured accurately and summed up as follows: Meat without the bone, 108 pounds; coffse, 3 gallons.
